CABARET VEIL, FASHION'S LATEST FANCY, HINTS OF THE ORIENTAL HAREM

The cabaret veil is the latest thing in veils and the idea has been taken from the draperies worn by the women of the Orient. It has already found favor with the women who adopt every new thing in feminine garb. It is simply a bit of rich black lace brought across the face below the eyes. It proves an effective disguise for the wearer and gives her an arch coquettish look.

Veal Chops.
Roll crackers enough for chops desired and beat one egg in rather deep dish. Cut away fat parts and dip each chop in the egg and then in the cracker crumbs. Season with salt and paprika. Put in frying pan and fry quickly a golden brown on each side. Cover with milk and place in oven. Let them remain there from 20 to 30 minutes.

THREE GARMENTS
ARE SUFFICIENT

Mrs. Stuart Says That Many
Will Properly Clothe Any Woman.

Special Correspondence.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 5.—"I wear but three garments," says Mrs. Lillian Stuart. "They are a waist, a skirt and a union suit."

It isn't betraying any confidence to tell it, because Mrs. Stuart herself blurted it right out in public the other day at the school hygiene congress in Buffalo. She is proud of her simple costume, and wants all women to adopt it.

She is president and founder of the Stuart School of Dress Education. She went to the Buffalo congress at Mayor Kiel's personal representative and as a delegate from the Missouri branch of the Congress of Mothers.

The other delegates gasped when Mrs. Stuart appeared before them in her three-garment suit, supplemented by a loose cord about the waist and a pair of sandals.

And stockings, of course. They're not garments, but only accessories.
And, speaking of stockings, Mrs. Stuart has this to say:

"Right and left stockings are just as essential as right and left shoes.
Every night, if necessary, hang the right stocking on the right bedpost, and the left one on the left bedpost; but, however you do it, use right and left stockings and don't get them mixed."

"As for shoes, feet that the cramped and distorted will make a woman age faster than anything else. The high heels throw the body out of poise and cause nervousness. The pointed toes, wherein there is scarcely room for two toes, throw the bones out of their natural order, impede the circulation and bring on nervous disorders."

"Off with the heels, and spread the toes out! Big feet are no disgrace; small feet bring on break-downs."

Mrs. Stuart also has definite reform notions regarding those "instruments of torture," corsets and collars.

"With nearly every corset worn," she declares, "the woman carries approximately three and a half pounds of steel. Her body is girded with armor which clamps her ribs and draws them in tight. There is no room for expansion."

"Clothing should not only serve the body, but should give the soul room to develop and be free. No soul can be free if its waistline is eight inches too small, its feet pinched and its neck restrained by a collar that would fit a giraffe in evening dress."

At the Majestic.

A comedy school act employing eight lively girls and boys is the feature attraction at the Majestic. Eccentric comedy characters, a farce comedy teacher and attractive missions in curls and short dresses make the act interesting. The singing number are well presented and several new songs are offered. A special drop and school furniture adds realism to the act. The encores have been hearty and numerous. Rob Clemens, a kid rube comedian, and Rose Beckerich, with Irish song slides make up an attractive bill in addition to the pictures.
